

Coffee

It's easy to spoil good coffee in the grinding. If it's uneven, if there's chaff in it, it may be bitterish, muddy, lifeless.

Schilling's Best is first cracked and freed of bitterish chaff; then cut into even bits and the fine coffee-dust blown-out.

Of course, it must then be sealed at once in airtight tins—to hold-in all its rich, fine flavor for you.

Even grinding is economy—every bit helps flavor the cup.

RECKLESS DARING
BY FIRST SIBERIAN
CORPS IS NARRATED

Task of Soldiers Most Difficult—Detailed Account of Bravery; Unbelievable Recklessness of Siberians.

HEADQUARTERS OF THE RUSSIAN ARMY OF THE CENTER, Jan. 1.—The following story of the 21st Flying Column of the First Siberian Corps was related by Andrew Kalpaschnikoff, former secretary of the Russian embassy at Washington. Kalpaschnikoff offered his services to his country at the outbreak of the war and was assigned to service with the Red Cross. He became identified with the 21st flying squadron and was soon placed in command of that body.

"The reckless daring of the First Siberian Corps," said Kalpaschnikoff, "is well known throughout Russia. The flying squadron attached to such a fighting organization has no easy task. In the first days of the war several columns attracted by the brilliant achievements of that corps in the defense of Warsaw strove for the honor of working with it, and especially with the famous first division; but they found the work too hard or too dangerous, and after brief periods abandoned the task.

"Twenty-first Flying Squadron, that had been with the corps since the end of November, 1914, has proven its worth. It was organized at the expense of the rich patroness, Countess Tolstoy, already famed for the work she has done in the founding of hospitals and feeding points for the sick and wounded. Early in October it did its first work with one of the European corps sent to the relief of Lovitch. At a critical moment when the enemy had broken through the Russian lines at two places, the column took up its task on its own initiative. The commander at that time Baskinoff, dispatched two sections to a boring village in charge of Terotchin, son of the Emperor's physician and myself.

"A diplomat and a student, neither of whom had ever been in war before, could not judge of the danger and we rode boldly into the village, half of which had already been occupied by the Germans. The latter, opened fire on our sanitary carriages with rapid fire guns. Part of the carriages were destroyed. We recalled our men and started back as fast as we could. The Germans shelled the road over which we rode to our headquarters, but found that the road from Lovitch had been cut. With the wounded we picked up we had to make a retreat of thirty-five miles in one night. Most of the way we were under German shell fire. We arrived at Skiernivitz. There we found the town had been ordered evacuated by the Russian troops and we were the only ones left there. A hot fight was in progress outside the city. At the last moment a Russian success on one of the flanks saved the city and enabled the Russians to repulse the Germans. Being the only red cross unit on the ground, and that as the result of a mere chance, we bound and fed, in two days 3,017 wounded.

We were ordered then to move on with the corps of the famous General Mishanko, known as the Cossack raider of the Japanese war. We took up our work in his lines just at the time the Germans made the second dash on Warsaw. Our corps stood firm for nine days, repulsing attack after attack. The nine days among the Caucasian heroes was the most trying and dangerous, but at the same time the most instructive, of our experiences. In one night seven hundred wounded were found and cared for, the greater part of the trenches under heavy artillery fire. Several sanitaris were wounded.

"When my corps came to the rescue the Caucasians were ordered to make a rapid move back to join fresh troops and begin to advance together. The move was executed so rapidly and so quickly that the military aid had no time to take out the wounded lying in several villages nearby. The last section of the column agreed to creep into the village and rescue the wounded who otherwise were threatened with being burned, fire having broken out in several places. Through the blackness of the night, lit only by the burning shells, we made our way into the village and removed eighty men from the danger zone. The staff considered them lost and upon learning of their rescue General Mishanko called out the heroes of that night and thanked them for their work and made them the subject of a flattering order to his regiment. Immediately after that the commander of the column fell ill and I was left in command.

"Among the troops whose rallying stopped the Germans a second time from coming to Warsaw were those of the First Siberian Corps.

"For the first time having seen the magnetic Siberian officers," said Kalpaschnikoff, "I decided to offer the Jess Willard (top) and Frank Moran.

Though Jess Willard would have nearly thirty pounds in weight to the good over Frank Moran if the bout proposed for New York this spring comes to pass, it's no certainty that the big champion wouldn't have his hands full. Willard has improved tremendously in the last two years, but he isn't as fast as Moran, nor is he as clever. And Moran proved in the two Coffey bouts that he can punch.

services of the column to that brilliant corps. I went to the commander of the corps, General Plechikoff, who accepted my services. I was fascinated by him, and my impression of him gained that day, as a man beloved by his soldiers, big-hearted and fatherly, has never changed.

During the long tenure of the line in Psara river before Warsaw, when the shells at times was so intense that it seemed to him that no human being could live in the trenches, Kalpaschnikoff and his column took out and cared for several thousand of the wounded, victims not only of the shells, but of German gases.

Continuing his narration Commander Kalpaschnikoff said:

"About this time the Prasnitz operation came to a crisis. A blow was necessary to stop the development of the German plan directed on Vilna. The Siberian corps was summoned to start on a few hours' notice and proceeded by forced marches 137 kilometers in wretched weather. Two days was allowed to cover the distance. The world knows of that brilliant dash and what was its result. The military hospital in this rapid march, had been left behind. The Twenty-first flying column followed and was the first to enter after the city had been taken by the First and Third Siberian regiments. The night we saw cannot be adequately described. More than 2700 wounded Germans without having had any care whatever, were lying or crawling about the streets, hiding in basements and out buildings, evidently hoping that the Germans would make a counter attack and re-enter the city. The ditches were full of dead and wounded as were open spaces about the city and the outlying villages. A great many of our men were scattered among the German wounded. We found the work almost beyond our capacity, far from a railroad and with troops always moving on. We formed concentration camps at various points and put students in charge of them. In these camps we collected 3360 wounded.

To accomplish the rescue Kalpaschnikoff and the student had to crawl more than a mile along a ditch, but in constant range of the German lines, but in the words of Kalpaschnikoff, "The German soldiers shot rather badly."

After the Germans left Heinoft the population was destitute and facing starvation. The Flying Column in the succeeding days made three 22,698 persons besides stamping out an epidemic of typhus fever which for a time threatened to assume large proportions.

INDICTED FOR COUNTERFEITING.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 12.—Rollie Yorke and Edward Karr, former Oakland policemen, went on trial in the federal district court charged with conspiracy to circulate counterfeit five dollar gold pieces.

George Randolph Chester

Having completed a course of instruction in his "Get-Rich-Quick Wallingford" stories, showing anyone who follows it how to become wealthy, George Randolph Chester now takes a new turn and shows his audience how to be good. In the new serial, "The Hall of Fire," which we have arranged to publish in installment form, Mr. Chester descends upon the modern tendency toward commercialism in everything, and especially that of making a business enterprise of a church.

It is a rapidly moving story with a well-defined romance centered largely around a beautiful western girl who visits her uncle in New York city. It is one of the best novels Chester has ever written and one you should not fail to read.

WOULD REDUCE PRICE.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—A substantial reduction in the price of armor plate was promised the Senate Naval Committee by President Grace, of the Bethlehem Steel company, if Congress should adopt the five year naval building program. He said: "We are willing to take almost any price to prevent the government from erecting its own armor plant making us throw away $7,100,000 invested in this highly specialized business."

NAMES TO COMET

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 19.—A comet, which for ages has been swarming its way around the sun once in every five or six years without recognition from this planet, has finally been discovered and named "Taylor's comet," according to a report made by Professor Armin O. Leuschner, head of the department of astronomy in the University of California. Computations of its orbit have just been completed by the university.

TURKS AND BRITISH MAY FIGHT BATTLE IN GARDEN OF EDEN

Top and bottom: Turco-German forces in Mesopotamian desert en way to meet British; Lieut. General Lake; map showing Garden of Eden, where decisive battle may be fought.

A big army of Turks, led by German officers, has crossed the Mesopotamian desert, and is now threatening the British army at Kut-el-Amara, near the Garden of Eden. It is believed that a decisive battle will be fought here soon. Lieut. General Sir Henry Noel Lake has just succeeded General Sir John Nixon as commander of the British forces in Mesopotamia, and upon his shoulders rests the difficult task of extricating the British army from its perilous position.

COOLIES STRIKE.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 19.—Eight thousand rickshaw coolies at Shanghai are on a strike and the city's transportation system is entirely upset. The coolies have established pickets in different parts of the city and have punctured the tires of rickshaws who attempted to break the strike and broken the heads of rickshawmen who refused to join the strike. Over ninety arrests have been made so far. The mixed crowd has sentenced one man to three weeks' imprisonment and scores of others will be brought to trial in a few days.

Foreigners have been respected by the Chinese in their rioting. However rickshaw men have been unwilling to risk assaults at the hands of the mob, and the rickshawmen's traffic is practically suspended. The trouble came about through the determination of the municipal authorities to reduce the number of rickshawmen's licenses from nine thousand to six thousand. This charged owner to make an advance of 40 per cent in the rent charged coolies for conveyances.

FOR BRONCHITIS, SEVERE COUGHS,
COLDS AND WHOOPING COUGH

Cheapest Remedy Made at Home—128 Teaspoonful for 50c.

Money spent for the old-style, ready-made medicine usually sold in bottles holding only 2 to 2½ ounces (16 to 20 teaspoonfuls) is largely wasted, because most of them is composed principally of sugar and water. Yet you have to pay the same price as if it were all medicine. Stop wasting this money. You can make a better remedy for bronchial affections, at home at one-fifth the cost. Merely go to Biebee Drug Co. and ask for 2 ounces (50 cents worth) of Schiffman's New Concentrated Expectant, which they guarantee will give perfect satisfaction or money will be refunded. Mix this with one pint of granulated sugar and one-half pint of boiling water, which makes a full pint (128 teaspoonfuls). This new, simple, pleasant remedy is guaranteed to relieve the worst cough or cold, Bronchial Asthma, Bronchitis, Croup, Hoarseness and Whooping Cough. One bottle will make enough home made medicine to probably last the whole family the entire winter. Children like it. It is so pleasant to take. It is unlike any other medicine and positively contains no chloroform, opium, morphine or other narcotics, as do most cough mixtures. Keep it on hand in case of emergency and stop each cough before it gets a firm hold. The above druggist, in fact any druggist in this city will return the money (just the same as is done with Schiffman's famous Asthmador) in every single case where it does not give perfect satisfaction or is not found the best remedy ever used. Absolutely no risk is run in buying this remedy—under this positive guarantee.
